LAWTON & BROTHERS

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE,

E. LITTELL & Co., corner of Tremont and Bromfield streets, Boston.

This work is conducted in the spirit of Littell's Museum of Foreign Literature, (which was favorably received by the public for twenty years) but on a more extended and comprehensive plan. It is the aim of the Living Age to present, from the entire field of the Periodical Literature of the World, a faithful compilation of the most valuable and interesting matter, embracing the Current Literature, Science, Politics, and Criticism, of the Leading Quarterly, Monthly, and Weekly Publications of the Mother Country; thus furnishing a repertory which, while it will be found indispensable to the professional man, and to every one who wishes to be informed of the progress of the times, will also present a literary and scientific journal, combining, in a cheap form, the cream of the entire foreign periodical literature, and the best productions of the ablest writers in the world.

The Publishers have now issued over Two Hundred and Fifty numbers of the Living Age, containing more than Three Thousand large octavo pages, forming four handsome volumes, and including the best Tales, Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Poetry, Scientific Papers, Sketches of Travels, Memoirs, Letters, Anecdotes, Bon Mots, Wit and Humor, of the most distinguished writers of the day, in all departments of literature, science, and art, which have appeared in the British periodicals during that time. Each number contains as much matter as a volume of the ordinary 12mo novels of the day, and the four volumes already published contain as much matter as forty such volumes, forming a series unequalled in the world for the variety, freshness, and raciness of its contents, and for the completeness with which it furnishes a truthful and living picture of the age.

The Living Age is published every Saturday, by E. LITTELL & Co., Boston, who supply back numbers to new subscribers. Persons in Newport can procure it of the Carriers, or at the News Office. Terms, $12 a year, or $6 for six months, always in advance. Specimen numbers will be sent gratuitously to those who wish to examine it before subscribing.

Postmasters, Clergymen, Teachers, and Literary Gentlemen, are authorized to act as Agents for the Living Age.

Subscriptions received at the office of this paper.

From the Boston Chronotype.

Consumption is the great cause of pain, sickness and death. It is the 15th part of deaths in Europe, and the 8th part of ours. It robs the cheek of its bloom, the eye of its lustre, the heart of its gayety, and the household of its joy. It takes the mother from the babe, the husband from the wife, the child from the parent, and the friend from the friend. It saps the foundations of life, destroys the energies of the mind, and prostrates the hopes of the soul. It lays the young man in the grave when he should be in the midst of his days, and bows down the old man with sorrow when he should be surrounded by his children. It is the most insidious, universal, fatal, and incurable disease that afflicts humanity.

Why is consumption the most fatal disease that afflicts humanity? Because it is the most insidious, and the most incurable. Why is it the most insidious? Because it is the most painless in its approaches, and the most deceptive in its advances. Why is it the most painless in its approaches, and the most deceptive in its advances? Because it is a disease of the blood, and the blood is the life. Why is it the most incurable? Because the blood is the life, and the life is the blood, and the blood is the source of all the secretions, and all the secretions are the source of all the diseases, and all the diseases are the source of all the pains, and all the pains are the source of all the sufferings, and all the sufferings are the source of all the sorrows, and all the sorrows are the source of all the miseries, and all the miseries are the source of all the calamities, and all the calamities are the source of all the misfortunes, and all the misfortunes are the source of all the evils, and all the evils are the source of all the ills, and all the ills are the source of all the troubles, and all the troubles are the source of all the difficulties, and all the difficulties are the source of all the obstacles, and all the obstacles are the source of all the hindrances, and all the hindrances are the source of all the impediments, and all the impediments are the source of all the disadvantages, and all the disadvantages are the source of all the inconveniences, and all the inconveniences are the source of all the annoyances, and all the annoyances are the source of all the vexations, and all the vexations are the source of all the irritations, and all the irritations are the source of all the disturbances, and all the disturbances

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 20, 1850

☞ Mr. Allen has met with quite as much success as he expected, in raising the Stock for a Telegraph taken. If our citizens will only praise a monument and contribute the importance of this improvement, to every one, they certainly will not hesitate to take the stock. The amount required is trifling, and it is sure to pay more than the ordinary legal interest. But aside from this, all should be willing to do something, as it will be a great benefit to the community.

☞ We learn that Miss Harriet Fanning Read is about to give a series of Shakspearian Readings in this town. Miss R. is a very accomplished young woman, and we trust that she will be liberally patronized in this community, as she is most worthy of it. She has been very successful in different parts of the country, during the last year.

☞ John R. Hatch, has been confirmed by the Senate as Mexican Boundary Commissioner.

☞ The Supreme Judicial Court has refused to grant the petition of Professor Webster, for a writ of Error. Chief Justice Shaw pronounced the decision.

☞ There will be public religious services at the Friends' Meeting House, this morning, at half past 10 o'clock.

☞ Gen. Leslie Combs and family, of Kentucky, are spending the Summer at Little Compton.

Sad Accident.—Joseph Champney, of South Kingston, R. I., aged 93 years, was instantly killed at the Junction Railroad station, Monday morning. He arrived in the Providence train, in company with his son, going to visit his children at the West, and was about taking passage in the Worcester train. He went to the door of one car and found it full, and then passed to another. In attempting to get in, he made a misstep and fell across the track, and the train commencing to move at the same instant, two cars passed directly over his body, and put an instant period to his life.—Worcester Spy.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

San Diego, April 20, 1850.

There has been a terrible affair at the mouth of the Gila. Some American trappers there to ferry passengers, &c. over the Rio Colorado. On last Tuesday, the 28th, a party of four or five hundred Indians attacked them about noon, and killed seven of them. Phenomely made their escape and came into town. There had been fifteen or twenty thousand Sonorenos and others, who had been crossing the river during the last three months, and the ferry company had nearly seventy thousand dollars. The Indians carried off the money and provisions and burned the houses. There had been rumors of the intrigues, &c., of the Americans at the ferry.

Since this affair we learn that the Indians commence depredations to a great extent, and I hear that numerous emigrants have been murdered. These Indians belong to a Soldier's tribe. We have some difficulty with them about a year last year, but nothing more serious happened than the loss of some of our cattle, which they stole and drove off.

We have two stories, under a pretty thick blind, however, that the story is partially exaggerated. There has probably been provocation deserving of more particularity of statement than the brief allusion to "outrages of extortion" made by the writer.

☞ Upon visits of the Boards of Mortality to Cape Cod, of the brig W. J. Watson, from Ponce, P. R., 20 days, reports that on the 9th inst. a letter of this place, from a merchant at St. Pierre, Martinique, dated the 27th of May, announcing that on the 10th of May the city of St. Pierre had been overwhelmed, and that the whole had since been the whole population of the place.

The firing of the city was supposed to be the result of a general rising. About one hundred houses were destroyed. The city is said to be dead there, but the conflagration had not ceased.

The negroes soon ended the affair, according to the reports, by every where putting the whites to the sword. Every white person who had been spared, and the city was under martial law. The insurgents had been defeated and many of them taken prisoners. They were on their way when the letter was written, and it was expected would be shot.

It will be observed that the report is only by hearsay. We have not seen it in any form without advice. It is, however, said that the letter of the writer of the people were under the influence of a rising against the negroes.

We think the account of a somewhat doubtful character.

For the Providence Daily News.

Mr. Editor:—Will you please publish below the Card of Mr. Willis, giving his statement of the affair, and oblige

In justice to the others concerned, I have no objection in the case, provided a statement of facts as detail is to us by a gentleman who vouches for their correctness. According to his account of the occurrence, Mr. Forrest met Mr. Willis in Washington Square, and said to him—"You damned scoundrel, you seduced my wife, and now I have got you!" Mr. Willis put his hand into his bosom, upon which Mr. Forrest knocked him down, and putting his foot upon his back, commenced beating him with a gutta percha cane which he carried in his hand. When the officers who arrested the fight came up, Mr. Forrest proclaimed that he had only been beating the man who had seduced his wife. The rest of the story, as we have heard it, agrees with the account we publish.

What the termination of the affair will be we cannot pretend to surmise, as Mr. Willis is said to enter a complaint against his assailant; but there cannot be any fear of its terminating as affairs of the kind usually do between gentlemen, for where there has been such an exhibit of civilian like pusillanimity, there can be no danger of the duello.

There is a heavy score or wrong in this community against one of the parties in this disgraceful brawl, which we trust there is virtue enough among our judicial officers to see enforced, but we fear is in the termination of the Macbeth tragedy rendered in Astor Place, that money will carry the day against justice, and that the luxury of a noble, a murder, or any other outrage on the public peace, may be enjoyed by any swaggering bully who chooses to keep a retinue of pimps in his service, and pay liberally for the savage enjoyment. Mr. Forrest appears determined, literally, to live his heroes upon the stage; but we don't believe circumstances justify his position when he turns himself out of the public authorities will always remain indifferent to his peculiar manner of interpreting the law of private rights and wrongs.

We are no respecters of persons when the public peace is concerned, and let our feelings be what they may towards the individuals implicated, we can only know them as offenders against the law, or as injured by its outrage.

A Card from N. P. Willis.

To the Editor of the Tribune:

Sir—As a statement will doubtless appear of an outrage which took place this evening, and as it may not be a correct one, allow me to state it, simply as it happened.

Walking, as I was in Washington square, with no suspicion that any one was near me, I was suddenly knocked down, and, while upon the ground, severely beaten. The first thing that I could observe was that two men, a Mr. Stephens, and another, were struggling to prevent persons from following up and when I recovered feet, I, for the first time, saw Mr. Edwin Forrest. He was in the hands of the police officers, and his two friends were eagerly declaring to the crowd that I was the seducer of Mr. Forrest's wife. This piqued indeed and slander of that lady I felt compelled to forbear at the Police Office, which we were then at. When I informed the Judge that I had no complaint to make, or other reckoning with Mr. Forrest, at that time, the usual bail was required, and I left the office.

As my whole past state to this ruffianly assault has been an endeavor to vindicate the honor of the lady, (and, of course, equally to know that her husband could not, though he chose to dishonor,) public opinion, so far as that question can go, will readily set the marriage in its true light.

Yours respectfully,

N. P. Willis.

Monday Evening, June 17.—N. Y. Tribune.

A Subterranean City. The chief of Police in New York recently made out a census of the inhabited cellars in the eighteen wards of that city, the number of rooms and of occupants—The grand total of all the subterranean explorations thus carried out November—Fourteen thousand persons pass at least dwellings in that city—that is, by persons who have not their houses—3,512; rooms in the same, 5,111; total number of residents, 15,456, or 21-4 to a room. Of these, 1,016 basements are reported "dirty," containing 5,123 persons, who are thirty-three or nearly 5 1-2 in each. 728 basements are "clean" and inhabited "clean minded rats"—or 42 to a basement.—The population of the city at the last census was 371,223, which is that one person out of every twenty eats, drink and sleep underground.

An American in Paris says that Americans have to pay enormous duties in Great Britain for all books which they take with them, for their own personal use, when published in any other than the English language, and all English, or those printed in any other country, if caught by the officers of the Custom House, are taken and destroyed. This is a fact that travelers should be aware of.

BY TELEGRAPH.

CONGRESS.

Washington, June 18.

Senate.—The deficiency bill from the House was considered and passed.

A communication was received from the Secretary of State, answering the resolution of the 13th inst.

On motion of Mr. Soule, the bill granting land to Ohio for a railroad was debated, amended, and ordered to be engrossed.

The special order of the day was then taken up.

Mr. Foote offered an amendment to Mr Hale's to admit new states with or without slavery, as the people decide.

Mr. Hale wished to withdraw his amendment.

Mr. Clay and others said "You can't withdraw it."

Messrs. Hale, Chase and Smith spoke strenuously against the proceeding.

Mr. Foote briefly sustained his amendment.

Mr. Smith protested strongly against introducing the irrelevant hypothetical propositions to control future Congresses, which elicited several flashes of sarcasm and personalities from Messrs. Foote and Hale.

Mr. Smith rebuked the practice of spending the time of the Senate in such idle debate.

The dog days are near at hand and nothing has been done.

Humorous rejoinders were made and the yeas and nays were called for upon Mr. Foote's amendment. Carried 26 to 19.

House.—Two reports on the Iowa contested election case were submitted, and the consideration of them was postponed until next week.

Mr. Jackson of Georgia, introduced a bill to remove obstructions in the Savannah river.

Mr. Chandler moved a reconsideration of the vote to order a committee to investigate the conduct of Secretary Meredith.

An animated and interesting debate followed.

Mr. Sweetzer explained, and defended his course in moving for the committee.

Mr. Morse denounced with great severity the course of proceedings, and against public functionaries chiefly.

Mr. Ashmun thanked Mr. Morse for the frank and noble defence.

Messrs. Morse, Ashmun and Casey continued the debate earnestly in favor of reconsidering, and Disney and Sweetzer against it.

Messrs. Thompson, of Miss., Houston and McLean of India., and King of New Jersey, Campbell, Stanton and Root further debated the subject.

New Orleans, June 17th.

The examination of Gen. Lopez stopped today. He was sent before the U. S. Circuit Court,—bail $2,000. The steamer Fashion arrived from Tampa Bay, with five companies of troops, and reports Gen. Twiggs as having left for Washington via San Augustine. The Civilian, of the 14th, contains a proclamation from Col. Munroe, directing the election of delegates to a Convention to form State Government for New Mexico, the Convention to be held at Santa Fe, on the 15th May. Maj. Neighbors has returned from Austin after an ineffectual effort to organize the country of Santa Fe in consequence of the military authorities.

Taking the Census. "Madam, will you please inform me of the number of inhabitants in this house?"

"Sir?"

"The population in this mansion."

"Well, there is eight in the room directly."

"How many?"

"Eight."

"Are they all adults?"

"No, they are all Smiths, except two strangers."

"Smiths; black or white smiths, madam?"

"I'd have you to know I don't live here 'mong niggers."

"I didn't allude to color; I meant their calling."

"O that's it, is it? Well, if you'd been here last night, you'd have found out, for they was calling the watch as loud as they could scream."

"Madam, I merely wish to know how many people you have in this house, and what they do for a living."

"Yes, yes, now I understand. Well, let me see, there's the two Mathews—that's one."

"That makes two, madam."

"Well, if you know best, count 'em yourself."

"It is my business to inquire, madam."

"Well, you had better attend to it, then, and not bother me."

"Madam, I am not with the curious, and——"

"Well, you act out of your senses, I should think, to come into my house asking such questions."

"It is in accordance with an act of Congress, madam."

"Well, you tell Mr. Congress, or whoever his name is, that he was very foolish, sending you to mind such shiftless ones."

The Pert Country Girl in an Omnibus.—Mr. Willis, in the Home Journal relates the following incident:—Let me tell a little instance of exactness in one of these country ladies which we witnessed in an omnibus, the other day. She was excessively pretty, and in her mouth, (the dimples at the corners of which were so deep, and so turned in like inverted commas, that her lips looked like a quotation) she carried the fated sixpence, doomed to pass from the warm lidless of that rosy pressure to the cold change-box on the top. Arriving opposite the Tabernacle, she pulled the string, took the piece of silver from her mouth, and gave it to a young man sitting opposite. He received it politely, but, as the omnibus was a minute or so in coming to a stand still, she had time to observe that he admiringly placed the moist sixpence within his own lips, and took a less magnetized one from his own pocket to throw away on the driver. There was a suppressed smile among the other passengers, but the Lady was not to be complimented so promiscuously.—I'll trouble you for my sixpence, sir!" she said holding out her hand with its green "mitt;" and receiving the money between thumb and finger, as she would take a cock-roach from a pot of marmalade, she passed it up herself and looked round rebukingly, as she went out, on those of us who had had the impertinence to smile. Now, we commend this young lady to the nominating committee of the "Ohio Convention for the Rights of Woman," and, if she will send us her name, we will see that it is opportunely launched on some young wave of the present rising flood of the sovereignty of woman.

A teacher in one of the Sunday Schools was lecturing a class of little girls on the influence of pious instruction in the formation of youthful character. "Ah, Miss Caroline," said he, to one of the class, "what do you think you would have been without your good father and pious mother?" "I suppose, sir," answered Miss Caroline, "I would have been an orphan."

CAUTION.

THE REMARKABLE SANATIVE POWERS OF

DR. S. P. TOWNSEND'S

have induced numerous attempts to counterfeit it, and make fraudulent use of Dr. Townsend's NAME to secure the sale of SPURIOUS ARTICLES.

These counterfeits and imitations only prove the VALUE of the ORIGINAL, and no greater COMPLIMENT could be paid to Dr. S. P. Townsend's Extract of Sarsaparilla than the fabrications that have been made by many to get up SOMETHING LIKE IT. As to the DISHONEST ATTEMPTS that have been made so to use Dr. Townsend's NAME as to create CONFUSION in the public mind in reference to the GENUINE ARTICLE, we publish below A CARD OF ALL THE
